First City Web Chat on Elk Grove Online this Tuesday

Local media is changing, and so is the way Elk Grove residents get their news and information. We're trying out new tools at City Hall to keep our community informed and connected. On Tuesday, October 6 at 2 p.m., City of Elk Grove staff will be participating in our first live Web chat on Elk Grove Online. Based on suggestions from the community, we'll be having an online discussion about economic development and stimulating the local economy. Assistant City Manager Pat Blacklock and Senior Management Analyst Heather Ross will answer your questions in real time. For more information, check out www.elk-grove.com.

Showcasing Elk Grove Entrepreneurs

Join regional business leaders for an Elk Grove entrepreneur and business seminar this Thursday at Elk Grove City Hall. The Elk Grove Innovation Showcase and Elk Grove Economic Development Corporation will be presenting "Raising Capital to Grow Your Business" from 4 p.m. to 7 pm. in the Council Chambers (8400 Laguna Palms Way). Participants will get a chance to network with a panel of experts face-to-face, and via live webcast, who will discuss bank financing, equity financing, venture capital and angel capital, among other topics. City Seeks Information about Local Flooding, Drainage Issues

With rainy winter months around the corner, it's the time to plan ahead—and we need your help! The Public Works Department would like to hear from you about drainage, flooding or water quality issues that you or your neighborhood have experienced in the past. This information can help identify new drainage concerns not currently classified by the Public Works Department. With this information, we can also determine probable causes of flooding, and identify stormwater quality solutions. Fill the questionnaire out at www.egpublicworks.org or call 916-627-3434.
